Summary

The Local Government Association (LGA) measures resident satisfaction with councils every three to four months. This report presents the results of the twenty-ninth round of polling conducted in June 2021. Six key indicators are used to measure residents' views of their local council. Respondents are also asked to indicate their level of satisfaction with nine council services. Other questions focus on perceptions of safety, trust in politicians/ central and local government and media coverage of councils. Additional questions are occasionally asked.

Methodology

Between 25 June and 6 July 2021, a representative random sample of 1,006 British adults (aged 18 or over) was polled by telephone by Yonder Data Solutions. The same set of questions is asked in the same order each round to allow for the reporting of any changes in the overall views of the general public about the reputation of local government. A full set of interview questions is included in Annex B for information.

Key messages

Satisfaction with how one's council operates remains strong but has fallen compared to June 2020's record high result. All six of the key measures of satisfaction were rated positively by the majority of those polled in June 2021. Public trust remains high; 64 per cent of respondents reported trusting their local council either 'a great deal' or 'a fair amount'.

Results

- 82 per cent of respondents are 'very satisfied' or 'fairly satisfied' with their local area as a place to live.
- 68 per cent of respondents are 'very satisfied' or 'fairly satisfied' with the way their local council runs things.
- 61 per cent of respondents think their local council keep residents 'very well informed' or 'fairly well informed' about the services and benefits it provides.
- 64 per cent of respondents trust their local council 'a great deal' or 'a fair amount'.
- 62 per cent of respondents think their local council acts on the concerns of residents 'a great deal' or 'a fair amount'.
- 49 per cent of respondents 'strongly agree' or 'tend to agree' that their council provides value for money – and 29 per cent neither agree nor disagree.
- Waste collection, and parks and green spaces, received the highest levels of satisfaction among respondents with 80 per cent and 81 per cent, respectively saying that they are 'very satisfied' or 'fairly satisfied' with these services.

- 73 per cent of respondents said they trust their local council to make decisions about how services are provided in their local area compared to 17 per cent who said they trust the government, nine per cent who said they trusted neither and one per cent were unsure.
- 72 per cent of respondents singled out local councillors, as opposed to members of parliament (11 per cent) and government ministers (eight per cent), as the individuals they most trust to make decisions about how services are provided at the local level.
- 86 per cent of respondents said it is very or fairly important their council undertakes activities to tackle climate change, thirteen per cent said not important and one per cent were unsure.
- 95 per cent of respondents would like to see their council encourage people to be more eco-friendly to tackle climate change.
- 99 per cent of respondents said it is important for their council to help older people and disabled people who need support as the country starts to recover from the pandemic.
- 82 per cent of respondents said it is important for them to comment on individual plans for all housing developments in their local area.

Introduction

This report outlines the twenty-ninth set of results in a series of regular Local Government Association (LGA) public polls on resident satisfaction with local councils, conducted three times a year since 2014 and quarterly up to that point.<sup>1</sup>

With the publication of Are You Being Served<sup>2</sup> in 2012 – the LGA provided a set of resident satisfaction questions that councils could use in their local surveys. The LGA has responded to demand from the sector for more intelligence in this area and to this end runs the resident satisfaction survey with a representative cohort of adults in England.

The LGA national polling complements councils' local work by regularly looking at the national picture. Tracking national changes in satisfaction with councils, alongside questions on other related issues about residents' local areas, can provide valuable information on what is driving resident perceptions and, therefore, what councils can do to serve their local communities better.

Many additional variables will influence resident views of councils at a local level, including local demographics, economic factors and social circumstances. It is important, therefore, that polling results are viewed as complementary to a wider approach aimed at understanding and responding to communities at a local level.

Comparison against national polls provides context and trends, and helps to identify possible relationships with other variables, but councils could include additional questions in their local surveys and conduct other engagement activities. Analysis of this information might help diagnose what other factors are driving satisfaction levels locally.

Methodology

Between 25 June and 6 July 2021, a representative random sample of 1,006 British adults (aged 18 or over) was polled by telephone.<sup>3</sup> Respondents were given the following preamble at the outset:

"I would like to ask you some questions about your local council. Local councils are responsible for a range of services such as refuse collection, street cleaning, planning, education, social care services and road maintenance.

<sup>1</sup> Note that until October 2014, the polling was conducted quarterly. It was later changed to once every four months.

<sup>3</sup> Quotas were set on age, gender and region and the data weighted to the known British profile of age, gender, region, social grade, taken a foreign holiday in the last three years, tenure, number of cars in the household, working status, and mobile only households. The polling was conducted by Yonder Data Solutions, formerly Populus Data Solutions.

If you live in an area with more than one council, please think about the way in which they deliver services to you overall. This would include district and county councils. We are doing this to keep the survey simple as it is part of a national study.”

A full set of interview questions is included in Annex B for information. Where the questions cover the same topics as the Are You Being Served<sup>2</sup> question set, the same question ordering, wording, definitions and preamble have been used to allow comparability.<sup>4</sup>

Four additional questions were asked in this round: ‘Now thinking specifically about planning decisions, how important or not is it for you to be able to comment on individual plans for all housing developments in your local area?’; ‘As the country starts to recover from the pandemic, which, if any of the following do you think it is important for your council to do?’; ‘How important or not do you think it is for your council to undertake activities to tackle climate change?’; and ‘Which, if any, of the following activities would you like to see your council do to help tackle climate change?’.

Notes

Where tables and figures report the base, the description refers to the group of people who were asked the question. The number provided refers to the unweighted number of respondents who answered each question.

This is the twenty-ninth round of polling in this series, and the paper examines trends since the first round in September 2012.<sup>5</sup> Differences between results are highlighted within the report where this is statistically significant.<sup>6</sup>

Please note the following when reading the report:

- Throughout the report percentages in figures and tables may add to more than 100 due to rounding.
- The following conventions are used in tables: ‘*’ - less than 0.5 per cent; ‘0’ – no observations; ‘-’ – category not applicable/data not available.

<sup>4</sup> The mode of data collection can have a marked impact on results; therefore, results are only truly comparable with surveys conducted via telephone.

<https://www.local.gov.uk/our-support/research/research-publications/residents-satisfaction-surveys>

<sup>6</sup> Statistical significance is tested at the 95 per cent level.

Polling on resident satisfaction with councils

This section outlines the polling results for June 2021. Tables showing the full response breakdowns for every answer option can be found in Annex A.

Overall satisfaction with local area

Satisfaction with one's area as a place to live remained high in this series of public polling. A total of 82 per cent of respondents reported being 'very satisfied' or 'fairly satisfied'. While satisfaction has decreased significantly compared to June 2020, which saw a record high, it is broadly consistent with all other rounds of polling. See Figure 1.

Figure 1: Overall, how satisfied or dissatisfied are you with your local area as a place to live?<sup>7</sup>

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

Overall satisfaction with local council

Most respondents were satisfied with how their council operates. A total of 68 per cent of the sample said they were 'very satisfied' or 'fairly satisfied' with how their council is operating. This round's result is consistent with the last two rounds of polling in October 2020 and February 2021. See Figure 2.

<sup>7</sup> Local area was defined as "the area within 15 to 20 minutes walking distance from your home".

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

Value for money

Forty-nine per cent of respondents agreed that their council provides value for money (see Figure 3). Over a quarter of respondents gave a neutral reply. Of the six indicators of resident satisfaction, perceptions about value for money have always received much lower positive ratings than the other measures.

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

Council responsiveness

Satisfaction with councils' responsiveness has not changed significantly since the last round of polling in February 2021. Sixty-two per cent of respondents said their council acts on the concerns of local residents either 'a great deal' or 'a fair amount'. Prior to June 2020, satisfaction with a council's ability to act on residents' concerns last passed the 60 percent mark in October 2016. Acting on the concerns of local people is an important measure of local accountability as it looks at whether councils are perceived to be responsive to local issues and problems (see Figure 4).

<sup>8</sup> The following preamble was used: "In considering the next question, please think about the range of services your local council(s) provides to the community as a whole, as well as the services your household uses. It does not matter if you do not know all of the services your local council(s) provides to the community. We would like your general opinion."

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

Informed about the council

Sixty-one per cent of respondents were satisfied with the information received from their local council about the services and benefits it provides. Since February 2020 every round of polling has seen 60% or more residents satisfied with the information received from their council. See Figure 5.

Figure 5: Overall, how well informed do you think your local council(s) keeps residents about the services and benefits it provides?

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

Trust in forms of government

Sixty-four per cent of respondents reported trusting their local council either 'a great deal' or 'a fair amount'. This result is significantly higher than ten of the previous rounds. See Figure 6.

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

As in all previous rounds, respondents were much more likely to indicate that they trusted their local council, as opposed to the government, to make decisions about how services are provided in their local area (see Figure 7). Asked who they most trusted when it came to local decision making, their 'local council' or 'the government' or 'neither' – 73 per cent said their 'local council', 17 per cent said 'the government', nine per cent said 'neither' and one per cent was unsure.

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1009 British adults per round from Jun-13 to Jun-21

Comparable with all previous rounds, respondents were far more likely to single out local councillors as the individuals they most trusted to make decisions about how services were provided in their local area, as opposed to members of parliament and government ministers, (see Figure 8). Seventy-two per cent of respondents selected 'local councillors' when asked who they most trust to make local service decisions while 11 per cent selected 'members of parliament', eight per cent selected 'government ministers', eight per cent chose 'none of these' and two per cent were unsure.

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1009 British adults per round from Jan-14 to Jun-21. This question was introduced in January 2014.

Community safety

Perceptions of feeling safe after dark were broadly consistent with other rounds except for June last year. A total of 79 per cent of respondents said they felt 'very safe' or 'fairly safe' when outside in their local area after dark. See Figure 8.

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

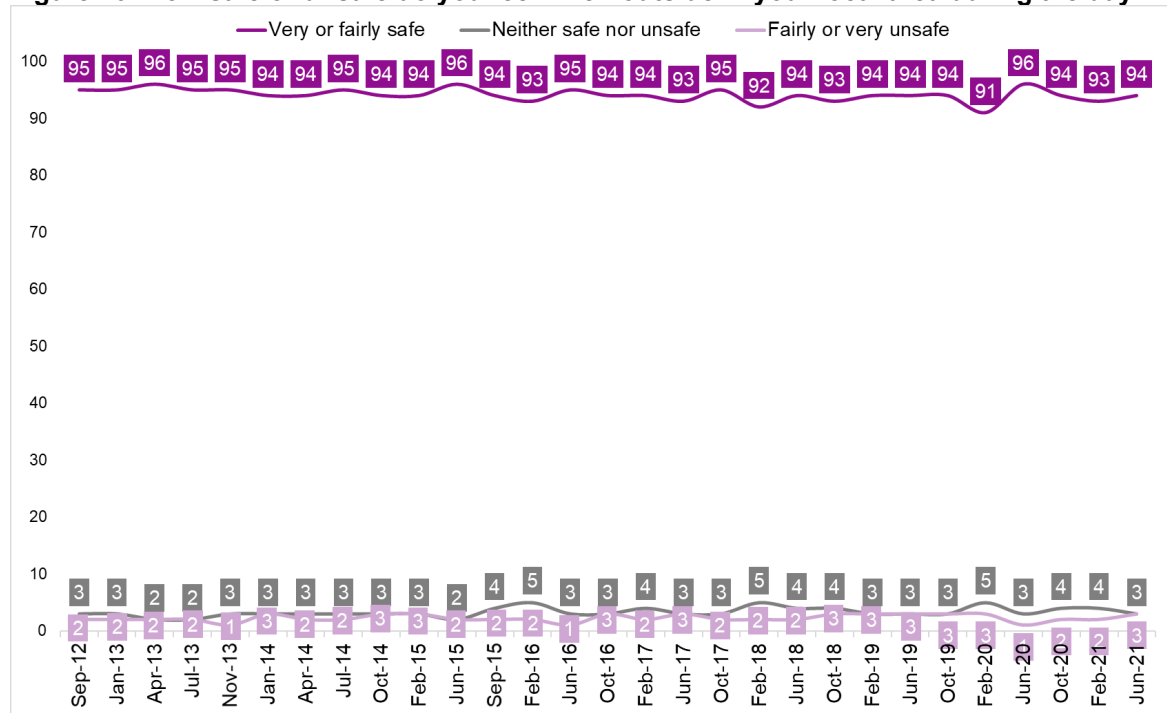

Perceptions of feeling safe during the day remain high. Ninety-four per cent of respondents said they feel 'very safe' or 'fairly safe' safety during the day in their local area. See Figure 10.

<sup>9</sup> 'Neither' was not read out to respondents as an answer option but the interviewer could code it if it was given spontaneously.

<sup>10</sup> 'None of the above' was not read out to respondents as an answer option but the interviewer could code it if it was given spontaneously.

<sup>11</sup>Local area was defined as "the area within 15 to 20 minutes walking distance from your home".

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

<sup>12</sup> Local area was defined as “the area within 15 to 20 minutes walking distance from your home”.

Service-specific satisfaction

Respondents were invited to indicate how satisfied or dissatisfied they were with the following council services<sup>13</sup>: waste collection; street cleaning; road maintenance; pavement maintenance; library services; sport and leisure services; services and support for older people; and services and support for children and young people. A ninth service, parks and green spaces, was introduced in October 2019. Tables showing the full set of service-specific satisfaction results can be found at Annex A.

Six of the nine services presented in this round received positive feedback from over 50 percent of respondents (see Figure 11). The highest levels of satisfactions were with waste collection, and parks and green spaces (79 per cent and 81 per cent were 'very satisfied' or 'fairly satisfied', respectively). These results are higher than overall satisfaction regarding how council runs things (68 per cent, see Figure 2).

Overall, road maintenance continues to have the highest level of dissatisfaction of all services.

Base (all respondents): 1006 British adults in Jun-21

The general trends for satisfaction with services across the polling time-series is shown in Figure 12.

<sup>13</sup> Note that these questions were asked of all respondents, and the bases include those who may not have used particular services.

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

Media portrayal of government

Respondents were asked whether, overall, they thought that the media has viewed the following forms of government positively or negatively in the last few months – ‘the government’, ‘local councils across the country’ and their ‘own local council’.

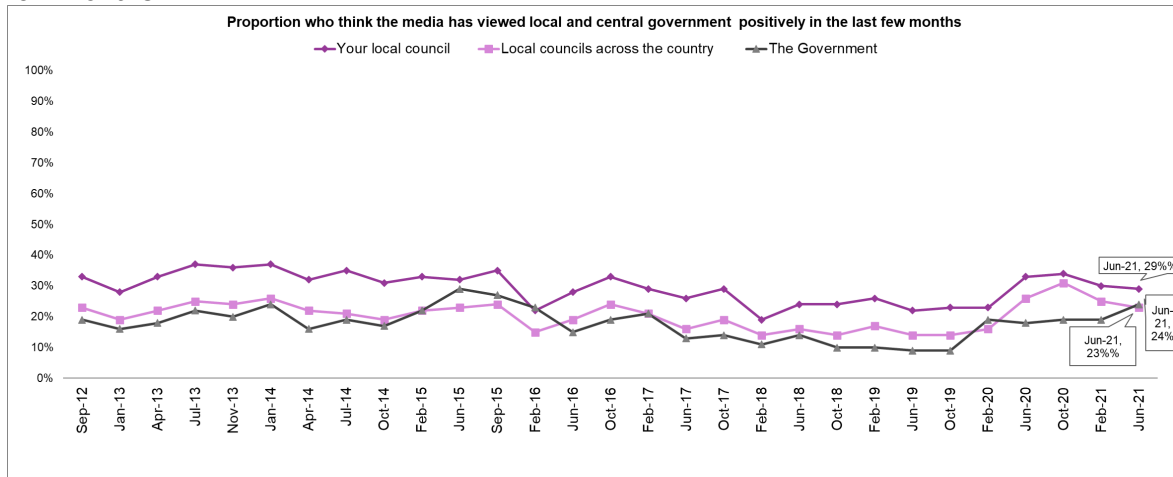

Regarding ‘the government’, the proportion of respondents observing positive coverage was 24 per cent (higher than 25 of the 18 previous rounds). The proportion observing negative coverage was 49 per cent, and the proportion who responded ‘neither positively nor negatively’ was 22 per cent.

Concerning the media’s coverage of ‘local councils across the country’, 23 per cent of respondents observed positive coverage –a statistically significant observation than 13 rounds of polling. The proportion of respondents observing negative coverage was 25 per cent and those observing neither positive nor negative coverage was 43 per cent.

Asked about media coverage of their ‘own local council’, 29 per cent of respondents observed positive coverage, which is significantly higher than seven other results. The proportion reporting negative coverage was 16 per cent in this round, and 47 per cent for those observing neither positive nor negative coverage.

Figure 13 shows the proportion of respondents who said that media coverage had been positive, since September 2012. The full set of figures can be found at Annex A.

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-21

Housing and planning

Eighty-two per cent of respondents said being able to comment on individual plans for all housing developments in their local area was 'very important' (49 per cent) or 'fairly important' (32 per cent). Just four per cent of respondents answered that commenting on individual plans for all housing developments in their local area was 'not important at all'. See Table 1.

Climate change

Eighty-six per cent of respondents said it was 'very important' or 'fairly important' for their council to undertake activities to tackle climate change. Over half of respondents (58 per cent) said to was 'very important' for their council to undertake activities to tackle climate change. See Table 2.

Figure 14 shows the proportion of respondents who answered 'yes' to each activity when asked 'which, if any, of the following activities would you like to see your council do to help tackle climate change?'. The activity that observed the most positive response was 'encourage people to be more eco-friendly' with 95 per cent of respondents answering 'yes'. The activity that observed the fewest positive responses was 'increase the number of on-street and public charging points for electric cars' with 79 per cent of respondents answering 'yes'.

Covid-19

Ninety-nine per cent of respondents said their council 'helping older people and disabled people who need support' as the country starts to recover from the pandemic was either 'very important' or 'fairly important', the highest of all activities. Eighty-one per cent of respondents said 'introducing measures to encourage more cycling and walking' was 'very important' or 'fairly important' as the country recovers from the pandemic, the lowest response rate of all activities. See Figure 15.

Please note that this may also occur in other parts of the report where answer categories are combined.

<sup>17</sup> The following preamble was used: "In considering the next question, please think about the range of services your local council(s) provides to the community as a whole, as well as the services your household uses. It does not matter if you do not know all of the services your local council(s) provides to the community. We would like your general opinion."

Annex B: Polling questions

NOTE TO INTERVIEWERS: On treatment of 'don't know' throughout the survey: a specific reference to 'don't know' should not be included in the answer lists. The interviewer can, however, code this answer if it is given spontaneously.

INTRODUCTION

I would like to ask you some questions about your local council. Local councils are responsible for a range of services such as refuse collection, street cleaning, planning, education, social care services and road maintenance.

If you live in an area with more than one council please think about the way in which they deliver services to you overall. This would include district and county councils. We are doing this to keep the survey simple as it is part of a national study.

1. Overall, how satisfied or dissatisfied are you with your local area as a place to live?

Please consider your local area to be the area within 15–20 minutes walking distance from your home.

SELECT ONE ANSWER ONLY

- Very satisfied
- Fairly satisfied
- Neither satisfied nor dissatisfied
- Fairly dissatisfied
- Very dissatisfied

2. Overall, how satisfied or dissatisfied are you with the way your local council(s) runs things?

SELECT ONE ANSWER ONLY

- Very satisfied
- Fairly satisfied
- Neither satisfied nor dissatisfied
- Fairly dissatisfied
- Very dissatisfied

In considering the next question, please think about the range of services your local council(s) provides to the community as a whole, as well as the services your household uses. It does not matter if you do not know all of the services your local council(s) provides to the community. We would like your general opinion.

3. To what extent do you agree or disagree that your local council(s) provides value for money?

SELECT ONE ANSWER ONLY

- Strongly agree
- Tend to agree
- Neither agree nor disagree
